COMPLETION OF FIRST YEAR

This issue, except for an index of the titles recorded in the Current List from journals not used in compiling the Quarterly Cumulative Index Medicus, concludes the first year of the experiment of acquainting research workers promptly with the contents of medical periodicals. Although there is room for improvement, it is evident that the plan has the virtues of promptness, economy, and efficiency. The enthusiastic approval, expressed in letters from many of those who have found it helpful, will bear witness to this. Some of these remarks, selected at random, were published in the October 1st (No. 40) issue of the Current List. The failure to acknowledge each of these letters was due, not to lack of appreciation but to the pressure of other calls in connection with preparing the succeeding issues and bringing the project to the attention of those who might be able to use it to advantage. For this reason we wish now to acknowledge the pleasure and encouragement which have been derived from these letters, and to severally thank each one who has taken the trouble to express his approval of our efforts.

Due to the uncertainty as to the number of subscribers to be provided for, accurate estimates of the edition to be printed each week could not be made. For this reason the supply of some of the numbers has been exhausted and complete sets of back numbers cannot be furnished to many of those who subscribed during the latter part of the year. It is hoped hereafter that it will be possible to estimate more accurately the number of copies needed to take care of any increase in the number of subscribers.

In spite of irregularities in receipt of journals due to the war situation, there has been so far no delay in the appearance of each weekly issue of the Current List. The credit for this is due largely to the diligence and efficiency of Mrs. D. M. Hannon of the Library staff who has regularly prepared in her home the typed copy for each issue without interruption during the summer vacation and other periods of modified library operation.

The extension of the war and resulting further restriction in receipt of foreign journals may make it impossible to maintain this record in the future. It will probably be necessary from time to time to issue combined numbers containing the material received during two weeks instead of one. It will be our purpose, as before, to record as promptly and accurately as possible the contents of all journals arriving in the Army Medical Library.

It may be of interest to some to know that the size of the page and the number of pages per issue have been chosen on the basis of economy. The 6x9 inch page size is the most advantageous from the standpoint of stock sizes of commercial paper sheets and of planographic equipment. The next larger size page would cost proportionately much more. This is also the maximum size which will fit in one's pocket for convenient use by those who are on the move. In regard to the minimum limit of twenty pages of reproduced titles per issue, the postal regulations restrict the one cent postage rate to pamphlets of not less than twenty-two printed pages. Since a cover is necessary, its two inside pages are available for the notes, information, and items of general interest which are published each week and which it is hoped are found interesting and helpful.

In conclusion we wish to repeat that those responsible for the Current List are actuated solely by the desire to promote medical research. We trust, if our efforts are proving helpful to you, that you will cooperate in bringing the publication to the attention of others who may be able to use it to advantage.
